

Spring 2025 Webinars

The Pursuit of Educational Justice and the History of Schooling in Canada

Presenter Jasmine Wong

Join us for an enlightening webinar that delves into the rich and complex history of schooling in Canada, and Facing History and Ourselves' work to shed light on the challenges, tensions and everyday choices that have shaped the Canadian education system. We'll delve into fascinating stories and hidden histories, and discuss the opportunities that can come from teaching and learning these histories. Don't miss this opportunity to gain a deeper insight into Canada's educational landscape and the ongoing efforts to create a more inclusive and equitable future.

Thursday, May 8

4:00 p.m.–5:00 p.m.

REGISTER

PRESENTER

Jasmine Wong

Jasmine Wong is an Associate Program Director with Facing History and Ourselves where she has spent over a decade leading professional development and organizational growth across Canada with the goal of nurturing a more just, inclusive and humane citizenry. Prior to her work with Facing History and Ourselves, Jasmine taught grades 6—8 in Toronto, ON and Brookline, MA. She has also facilitated adult education with diverse audiences in New Delhi, India and Kampala, Uganda. She earned her M.A. in Education Policy, Organization and Leadership Studies at Stanford University, and her B.Ed. from the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education at the University of Toronto.

Visit the OTF Website for additional webinar information